Have a survival bag ready in case of terror, Sydney is told

People living in Australia's largest city are being urged to keep survival bags at their homes and workplaces in the event of a terrorist attack or natural disaster. The so-called Go-Bags should contain items such as maps, running shoes, sunscreen and toilet paper, residents of Sydney have been told.

5 The advice issued by city authorities also tells people "you can carry your cat in a pillowcase" during an evacuation and tells them to turn off their gas and electricity and to check on their neighbours before going to designated emergency gathering points around the city.

10 The backers of the Let's Get Ready Sydney campaign said it was a responsible promotion designed to prepare residents for civil emergencies, including a terror attack. Apart from the Go-Bags, which should also contain items such as a first-aid kit, spare change, energy bars and a radio, Sydney residents were asked to think about how they would contact friends and relatives during an emergency when mobile phone services were disrupted.

15 On an accompanying website residents are rated on their level of preparedness in the event of a disaster. Those who tick 50% or fewer of the suggested emergency preparations are rebuked: "You have not made many emergency preparations, perhaps because you don't like thinking about the subject."

20 The campaign attracted ridicule when it was launched by the lord mayor, Clover Moore. The Sydney Morning Herald commented: "Torch? Check. Maps? Check. Sense of impending doom? Check." A cartoon showed a fashion-conscious woman hesitating over whether to choose a Hermès or Louis Vuitton Go-Bag. The deputy mayor, Chris Hill, also mocked the A$200,000 ($176,000) campaign, partly funded by the Commonwealth attorney general's department, suggesting Go-Bags should contain sunglasses, inflatable water rings, a Sydney good food guide and a one-way ticket to Barcelona.

25 "I find these fear campaigns personally offensive," said Mr Hill, a member of the Australian Green Party. "Where are we supposed to go with our Go-Bags? With our current public transport problems, the roads would be clogged in minutes."

30 He said it smacked of a government fear campaign in the run-up to the general election, due in a few months. A government spokesman denied the allegation, saying that the campaign, backed by posters and 200,000 leaflets, had been in planning for two years. Mrs Moore, who confessed that she had not packed her own Go-Bag yet, said it would be irresponsible not to be prepared for every eventuality.
