Document A

5 The man called himself Duffy and loomed large in front of them, his legs parted and hands on hips intimating with a smiling nod of his head he would not let any of them pass. His eyes glowed dark and a cigar sat fat and fuming on his heavy lips. Men of Erin<sup>1</sup>, he said. Come with me if you want to find work and I will make you your fortune.

They saw he was dressed in a suit knotted at the neck and wore a hat glossy and black. Listen up. The name's Duffy and I'm an Ulsterman like yourselves done good so I am and I can tell you now you will have a hard time doing good on your own without the likes of me<sup>2</sup> so listen.

10 His voice boomed over the bustle and clatter of the quays and the men gathered around with nervous glances. [...]

15 Come with me and I will give you work, Duff said. Some of you don't know a soul here but now you know me. That's real American money. The days are hard but the hours are fair and you will have fine canvas tents to sleep in. Fifteen dollars is plenty to be living on I can assure you. You will work for me six days of the week and you will have the Sabbath to yourselves. Plenty of food and all the whiskey you can buy and sure what more could a man want? All you'll be needing to bring are strong arms. Fit strong Irish men, aren't you? [...]

20 We are laying the ground for a new kind of engineering. A locomotive line. [...] There is a hill nearby and you will be required to level it for this rail line and then move the land from the hill down into the valley to make the fill. I need the hardest of the men among you. I will be straight and tell you that the work is tough but it is fine work for strong men such as yourselves. You men will be pioneers and you will build your fortune just like me. I am giving you a start. Those who want to come put up
25 your hands and follow me. [...]

You know me boys. I am one of you too. I understand yez. Born and bred in Ulster so I was and I made my way out here as a young man. I'll have you in my care if you come with me we'll make something of it. I have a house near Chester twenty miles outside the city where you can rest up a few days and we'll begin the start of 30 the week. Fair and honest work. Men of Erin what do you say?

Paul Lynch, Red Sky in Morning, 2013

America's new Irish immigrants

As immigration controls have gradually tightened it has become harder to make the journey. But unemployment, falling salaries, and poor career prospects have been prompting more Irish people to cross the Atlantic, some of them drawn to the Irish community. [...]

5 Some 70% of those emigrating from Ireland now are in their 20s, according to one recent study, which also found that they had higher than average education. But Niall O'Dowd, an Irish journalist and immigration reform campaigner based in New York, says they don't always find good jobs.

10 "A lot of them are very highly educated, smart people but they find pretty working-class jobs like construction and bar-tending here, because that's where the Irish network leads them and they're not able to break out of that."

Unless they are lucky enough to win permanent residency in a green card lottery, those who want to emigrate either have to find an employer to sponsor them before leaving, or come across on a J-1 visa<sup>1</sup> for students or recent graduates. [...]

15 Danielle Allen, 26, came out on a J-1 visa. She has a master's degree in business marketing, but had found herself working at the front desk of a hotel at home in County Cork.

20 She thought of going to California, where she had spent a summer as a student, but a cousin in Chicago persuaded her to head there instead. She found work at Chicago Irish Immigrant Support, and a large group of Irish friends who have also arrived in the last couple of years.

The Irish "stick together", she says. "There's a huge community here and everyone tries to help people coming out with finding accommodation, jobs."

Aidan Lewis, BBC News magazine section, 18 December 2013

Document C

On the cover of Irish America<sup>1</sup>, June/July 2014, CBS<sup>2</sup> broadcaster Norah O'Donnell is quoted saying: "Everybody says you're so lucky to be Irish, but I think the Irish know that they built that luck with a lot of hardwork".
